Christmas in Thailand:

Unlike New Year's Eve, Christmas is not an official holiday in Thailand.

The country is primarily a Buddhist country and although there is a small minority of resident Christians, much of the people do not have a Christmas tree or give gifts at Christmas.

However, in the commercial districts there is a huge industry in the sales of everything usually associated with Christmas in the western world.

Online Access: Supervise young people when they're online and give them advice about staying safe.
